

UNIVERSITY INSTITUTIONAL EFFECTIVENESS ASSESSMENT

DIVISIONAL REVIEW COMMITTEE

In October 2001, the University Assessment Committee unanimously approved the creation of Divisional Review Committees (DRCs) to implement the institutional effectiveness assessment process throughout the University of Central Florida. DRC members are typically experienced assessment coordinators from the review group. Each major academic or administrative division determines the composition and length of service for its DRC members.

As of fall 2015, there are a total of 22 Divisional Review Committees:

Academic Divisional Review Committees

College of Arts and Humanities
College of Business Administration
College of Education and Human Performance
College of Engineering and Computer Science
College of Graduate Studies
College of Health and Public Affairs
College of Medicine
College of Nursing
College of Optics and Photonics
College of Sciences
General Education Foundations
Rosen College of Hospitality Management
Undergraduate Studies

Administrative Divisional Review Committees

Academic Affairs I (Deans' Offices; Vice Presidents; Graduate Studies; and the Office of the Provost)
Academic Affairs II (units in Information Technology and Resources; Academic, Faculty, and International Affairs; and Undergraduate Studies)
Administration and Finance
Communications and Marketing
Community Relations and University Relations
Facilities and Safety
Office of Research and Commercialization (includes several research centers and related units)
President's Division
Student Development and Enrollment Services

Divisional Review Committee members:

- assist faculty and staff in adhering to specific review criteria
- review and evaluate the quality of program or unit results reports and plans
- compare the results reports and plans to those of the previous year

The Chair of each Divisional Review Committee sits on the University Assessment Committee.