

College of Business Administration
Academic Learning Compacts

Economics - B.S.

Discipline Specific Knowledge, Skills, Behavior and Values

1. Microeconomics

Students graduating from the BS program in Economics will demonstrate the application of the principles, theories, and analytical methods of Microeconomics to analyze economic problems.

2. Macroeconomics

Students graduating from the BS program in Economics will demonstrate the application of the principles, theories, and analytical methods of Macroeconomics to analyze economic problems.

3. Information Fluency

Students graduating from the BS program in Economics will demonstrate the ability to gather, evaluate, and use information pertaining to economic issues in ethical and legal ways.

4. Statistical Analysis

Students graduating from the BS program in Economics will demonstrate the application of statistical analysis methods and models to interpret economic data, and to draw inferences about economic behavior.

5. Mathematical Skills

Students graduating from the BS program in Economics will demonstrate their ability to draw insights about economic behavior from the application of algebra and calculus to economic problems.

6. International Economics

Students graduating from the BS program in Economics will apply economic principles and theories to analyze international economic issues.

Critical Thinking

1. Statistical Analysis

Students graduating from the BS program in Economics will demonstrate the application of statistical analysis methods and models to interpret economic data, and to draw inferences about economic behavior.

2. Mathematical Skills

Students graduating from the BS program in Economics will demonstrate their ability to draw insights about economic behavior from the application of algebra and calculus to economic problems.

3. Critical Thinking

Students graduating from the BS program in Economics will demonstrate critical thinking by applying systematic and logical reasoning to evaluate and draw valid conclusions about economic problems.

Communication

1. Microeconomics

Students graduating from the BS program in Economics will demonstrate the application of the principles, theories, and analytical methods of Microeconomics to analyze economic problems.

2. Macroeconomics

Students graduating from the BS program in Economics will demonstrate the application of the principles, theories, and analytical methods of Macroeconomics to analyze economic problems.

3. Written Communication

Students graduating from the BS program in Economics will demonstrate the ability to communicate economic ideas clearly and coherently, according to the conventions of written English.

Assessment of Economics - B.S. Outcomes

These outcomes will be assessed using a variety of assessment methods, including:

- Exams
- Individual and team projects
- Written papers and oral presentations
- Case studies