

College of Sciences Academic Learning Compacts

Forensic Science - B.S.

Discipline Specific Knowledge, Skills, Behavior and Values

1. Students will demonstrate competency in the theory and procedures of forensic science.
2. Students will demonstrate proficiency in scientific writing and written communication, and the ability to present information related to the field of forensic science.
3. Students will demonstrate an understand the ethical and legal issues essential to the field of Forensic Science.
4. Graduates will be adequately prepared for employment in a Forensics/Chemistry related field or for entry to graduate school.

Critical Thinking

1. Students will demonstrate competency in the theory and procedures of forensic science.
2. Students will demonstrate proficiency in scientific writing and written communication, and the ability to present information related to the field of forensic science.
3. Students will demonstrate an understand the ethical and legal issues essential to the field of Forensic Science.

Communication

1. Students will demonstrate proficiency in scientific writing and written communication, and the ability to present information related to the field of forensic science.
2. Graduates will be adequately prepared for employment in a Forensics/Chemistry related field or for entry to graduate school.

Assessment of Forensic Science - B.S. Outcomes

These outcomes will be assessed using a variety of assessment methods, including:

- Tests
- Lab reports/experiments
- Projects

- Research papers
- Presentations